Personal Information

We may collect your personal information, such as name, company name, IP address and email or physical address, from you directly or indirectly. We will collect, use, disclose, transfer, retain, or otherwise process your personal information in accordance with this Privacy Policy.

Cookies

Your Internet browser has a feature called “cookies.” Cookies are small packets of data that a website stores on your computer’s or mobile device’s hard drive (or other storage medium) so that your computer or device will “remember” information about your visit. We use both first and third-party session cookies and persistent cookies. Where available, the ability to accept cookie placement may be found in a cookie banner first displayed on the Website and, if available, in the cookie preferences. In some cases, we may associate information you provided us (e.g., email address) with the cookies we use. In addition to facilitating the purposes described above, this is useful in understanding your engagement with other content related to our Website (e.g., email open rates, URL click-throughs)

If you do not want us to place a cookie on your hard drive, you may be able to turn that feature off on your computer or mobile device, and, where available, you may decline the placement using a cookie banner. Please consult your browser’s documentation for information on how to do this and how to delete persistent cookies via your browser. However, if you decide not to accept cookies from us, certain aspects of our Website may not function properly or as intended.
